

The School of Business and Management listened to your feedback

You said

We did

There is a lack of research culture for PhD students.

- We now run monthly coffee mornings.
- We organise social meetups at least once a term.
- We schedule seminars, workshop and Q&A sessions.

There is a lack of opportunities to engage with academic staff.

All sessions organised by the School are attended by academic staff to improve PhD students' networking prospects.

The School's research centres are not a part of the lives of PhD students.

The research centres in the School of Business and Management have increased the doctoral-focused events they offer.

You student voice in action

Complete the Postgraduate Research Experience Survey 2024 to shape what's next...

SCAN ME