

HELEN CAM AWARD

Helen Cam, BCE, was an Undergraduate student at Royal Holloway College during 1904-1907, an MA student in 1909 and a member of staff from 1912 to 1921. She was appointed Fellow of Bryn Mawr College, Pennsylvania, USA before moving to Girton College, Cambridge. Her academic career culminated in her appointment to the Samuel Zemurray Professorship of History at Harvard, where she was the first woman to be appointed Professor at that University. Her research interests were Anglo-Saxon Government and Politics.

Conditions of the Award:

1. The Award is given to contribute towards exceptional research expenses (other than normal subsistence) which are not covered by any other grant or award.
2. The Award is open to History graduates of the College, to other History students who are, or have been, registered at the College for a Postgraduate course and to Research Fellows attached to the Department of History.
3. The research for which the Award will be made must be in one of the following fields:
 - Any aspect of Medieval History
 - Legal and constitutional modern West European History
4. No one may receive the Award on more than one occasion.
5. The Travel Awards and College Prizes Allocation Panel will consider applications for the Award and consult the Head of the Department of History before making a recommendation to the Academic Awards Group.
6. Recipients of the Award are required to submit a brief report of the activities for which they have utilised the Award. This report will be published on the Royal Holloway Travel Awards and College Prizes webpage.