Aims:	This course will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • develop your knowledge of a range of fundamental techniques of musical composition with particular focus on structure, harmonic control and the manipulation of rhythmic and melodic material • provide an opportunity to practise the art of musical composition and to develop skills in creative work
Learning Outcomes:	By the end of this course you should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • establish a coherent harmonic language and a critical attitude to rhythmic use • respond to a compositional brief and create a short composition for chamber ensemble • demonstrate knowledge of a broad overview of some of the techniques employed by composers of the past fifty or so years
Course Content:	Developing on areas covered in first-year Composition courses, this module will provide a framework in which you will be introduced to a number of techniques from diverse schools of composition in order to encourage you to explore and develop your own creativity. Key works from the past few decades will be studied and used as models or springboards for your own musical invention. You will create a portfolio of technical exercises and a short composition written in response to a given brief.
Teaching & Learning Methods:	The course will be taught in fortnightly sessions during the autumn and spring terms totalling a maximum of 20 hours alongside some 130 hours of private study, resulting in the notional total of 150 hours of study for the course. The fortnightly sessions will divide into three areas: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lectures, in which representative works will be used to explore compositional techniques and as potential models for your own creative ideas. Lectures will draw on a wide variety of mostly, but not exclusively, contemporary art music to illustrate the techniques being explored. • Small group tutorials, in which individual coursework will be discussed, to give you in-depth help, advice and feedback. • Practical sessions drawing on instrumentalists and singers from the class
