The 2018 Commercial Awareness Passport Challenge
By completing this challenge you’ll understand the benefits of commercial awareness and how it will help prepare you for the Careers Fair and meeting potential employers. Go to Moodle to take the challenge and earn 5 passport points.

Frequently asked questions
How should I prepare for the fair?
• Research the employers beforehand, by downloading the RHUL Careers Fair Plus App from your app store
• Have some general questions to ask the employers, e.g. What’s the work culture like?, What roles are available?
• There’s no need to pre-register, but remember to bring your college ID card to be scanned as you enter the fair.

What should I wear to the fair?
There is no set dress code, but remember you are there to meet real-life employers. No need to wear a suit, but a shirt and smart jeans may help you feel more confident and help you make more of an impression on a potential employer than your sportswear, for example.

I’m a recent graduate of Royal Holloway. Can I attend the fair?
Yes, you are very welcome to attend if you graduated within the last two years.

The Environment Agency

We work to create better places for people and wildlife, and support sustainable development. The Environment Agency is an executive non-departmental public body, sponsored by the Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs. Within England we’re responsible for regulating major industry and waste; the treatment of contaminated land; water quality and resources; fisheries; inland river, estuary and harbour navigations; and conservation and ecology. We are also responsible for managing the risk of flooding from main rivers, reservoirs, estuaries and the sea.

As well as a wide range of job opportunities, we offer an engineering graduate scheme, a geomatics under-graduate placement, Flood and coastal engineering foundation degree, BSc or MSc (in association with Brunel University and HR Wallingford), and apprenticeship opportunities in a range of different functions.

There are a range of benefits available when you work with us. We offer a competitive salary and a generous career average pension scheme. Other benefits include:

• A holiday allowance related to grade and length of service, rising from 25 or 27 days to 30 days per year, plus 8 statutory public and bank holidays (pro-rata for part-time employees)
• Maternity, paternity and adoption leave scheme
• Leave for examinations, approved studies, public duties, special or reserve forces, environmental work, trade union representatives and health and safety representatives
• A range of flexible working options, including flexi-time – these depend on business needs, but our aim is to help you achieve a positive work-life balance.

Our two-year Leadership Development programme offers outstanding graduates an exciting new route into one of Britain’s toughest and most rewarding professions. We prioritise hands-on experience through practice-based learning, and you will benefit from intensive practical and academic training, tailored to your needs, as one of a new generation of children’s social workers.

Following a five-week residential training programme, you will spend two years working in a local authority children’s services department, where you will start your career in social work. You’ll work directly with children, families, schools, courts and the police, to empower families to achieve positive change. You’ll see a real difference in yourself too, as you develop a whole range of invaluable and transferable skills including leadership, relationship-building and conflict resolution.

The first year qualifies you as a social worker through direct work with children and families. In the second year you will work as a newly qualified social worker responsible for your own caseload, and will complete a fully funded master’s qualification. Social work is a leadership profession; you will inspire, persuade and bring out the best in diverse children.

The OR Society

What size plane should British Airways buy? How can the NHS reroute ambulances for faster service? Where should Thompson send their summer holiday reps? These questions can all be answered with operational research (OR).

OR practitioners are people trained and experienced in finding effective approaches to real-world problems by using maths and science. OR opens the door for students to enter careers using cutting-edge tools like artificial intelligence, big data, analytics, and machine learning. New OR workers make a difference in the world from day one. Using OR techniques, such as mathematical modelling to analyse complex situations, they help leaders make informed business, government and charity decisions. Employers who recruit for OR analysts are large and varied, spanning across all different industries - think British Airways, Google, The UK Government, EY, Tui, Expedia, DSTL, British Gas, Disney, NHS, Capgemini and RBS.

The OR Society is the professional home of the operational research and analytics community with 3,100 members in 60 countries. Originally founded as the Operational Research Club in 1948, The OR Society promotes the understanding and use of operational research in all areas of life, including industry, business, government, health, and education. The society is a registered charity which offers OR learning, encourages students to engage with STEM subjects, and facilitates pro bono consultancy services. See more at www.theorsociety.com. Thames Water Utilities Ltd

Are you sitting comfortably? Let us tell you the story of one of the UK’s largest water and wastewater suppliers in the UK. We take care of water for 15 million people. And because our population’s growing by 100,000 people a year, we’re always planning ahead to make sure everyone can continue to enjoy fresh, clean water.

This includes investing £2.5 million every day in modernising our Victorian water pipes, to help stop leaks and protect supplies. With 20,000 miles of pipes, it’s a big job, but we’re on it. We use our engineering know-how to deliver extraordinary amounts of water – around 18 billion litres a week, enough to fill 7,020 Olympic swimming pools. Our tap water is world-class, with more quality tests than any bottled water.

Do you want to write the rest of this story with us? We're going through a period of exciting change in the water industry and need fresh, innovative and talented graduates to help us be the best in the business.

University of Law

The University of Law is one of the UK’s longest-established specialist providers of legal education. We can trace our origins to 1876 with the formation of leading tutorial firm Gibson & Weldon. With a rich heritage and a reputation for innovation and contemporary teaching practices, we continuously focus on developing the best legal minds.

What really sets us apart from other universities is the guiding principle that the current and future lawyers we teach should only ever learn in a realistic, professional and contemporary context with plenty of practical, interactive engagement. That’s why we keep our contact hours high and our teaching groups small. Our innovative postgraduate law courses are designed and taught by lawyers with real commercial experience and have a strong emphasis on building the practical skills that employers are looking for. We offer flexibility to suit your needs: choose to study on campus or online with a choice of full-time and part-time options.

Wellcome Trust

Wellcome exists to improve health for everyone by helping great ideas to thrive. Wellcome is a global charitable foundation, both politically and financially independent. It supports scientists and researchers, takes on big problems, fuels imaginations and sparks debate. Wellcome is well known for funding scientific and medical research, but more broadly it’s interested in the intersection of health, culture and art, and so is looking for graduates and undergraduates from all backgrounds.

For recent graduates that want to make a difference in global health and develop their skills, Wellcome offers two two-year graduate development programmes – an investments programme and a general programme. For the general programme graduates try out four different jobs for six months at a time. These could involve working with Wellcome’s Africa and Asia Programmes, writing parliamentary briefings or identifying new ways to engage the public. No matter which rotations graduates choose, they’ll be a valued member of the team, with support from mentors, line managers and peers.

For undergraduates we have a summer internship programme with opportunities across a range of teams for a period of eight weeks. For both our intern and graduate programmes participants benefit from on-the-job and formal training, real responsibilities, and the knowledge that they’re contributing to Wellcome’s overall purpose.

Opportunities
Graduate schemes, summer internship programme

Degree discipline
Applications welcome from ALL

Vacancy locations
